CARDS OUT OF DOORS

Two young hostesses with lawns adjoining decided to combine their invitation lists and share expenses by giving a lawn card party to include tables for both bridge and five hundred, so suiting the preference of all guests. Right now, affairs in the open are extremely popular and there is always a novelty to doing things outdoors, probably because the season is short for such entertaining.

The twenty tables spread out over a velvety lawn with many pleasant corners arranged under garden umbrellas presented a charming picture and the entire color scheme was carried out in yellow. Gorgeous golden glow was in evidence everywhere. It formed a hedge between the houses. It was banked in huge tubs and crocks, making brilliant splashes of color where most effective.

The tables had white covers with narrow bands of yellow for holding score cards and pencils. The cards were ornamented with sunflowers, the petals being cut out from the top. The pencils were bright yellow and had white ribbons attached.

The prizes were yellow and white bags made of silk and net and given for the three high scores at both bridge and five hundred tables. Refreshments were all in white and yellow and most delicious, consisting of orange sherbet in tall glasses, a luscious dab of whipped cream on top, and the cakes were card shaped, tied in white with yellow diamonds, hearts, spades and clubs. Orange and lemon slices were the bonuses passed on white and gold glass dishes. During the game the players were refreshed by glasses of orangeade, in which thin slices of orange and lemon floated, and to make the scene still more colorful, the hostesses wore yellow or gaudy frocks, with white net sashes.

YOUR HAIR IN SUMMER
The housewife has one decided advantage over the young woman who finds occupation outside of her home in that she does not need to wear a hat so often in summer. In many places the housewife can even go to market without a hat, depending on a parasol on sunny days for protection against Sol's rays. In some suburban places women drive their own cars to market and never think of wearing hats. Now it is the hat plus hot weather that raises the most trouble in summer. If exposed to the air the moisture of the hair evaporates without injury to the hair, but if a hat is worn for any length of time this perspiration remains on the hair, with the result that the hair becomes lifeless and all but unmanageable.

At night in very warm weather let the hair down at least half an hour before going to sleep, and sit by an open window with the hair streaming over the back of a chair. Shake the locks well in the breeze and dust with powdered orris root, or, in the case of light hair, with scented talcum powder. This dries out the perspiration of the day and cools the head for sleeping.

Fasten the hair in two braids, each well over toward the ears, so that the air can get to the back of the scalp. One young woman who takes pride in looking as well when she retires as she does during the day ties her hair with a bow of the most supple satin ribbon in her favorite color. This does not break the hair and keeps it from getting unbraided and snarled while she is asleep. In tying the ends of the braids, do not turn them up. This causes the hair to split.

Each time the hair is shampooed, brushes, comb and hairpins should have their baths as well. These can be cleaned quickly with a nail brush in tepid water holding a tablespoonful of ammonia. Wipe the combs thoroughly between the teeth and allow the brush to dry in the sun, bristles downward. When the bristles are up the water soaks in and loosens the back of the brush.

The secret of keeping the hair fluffy and loose is to change the manner in which it is done up from day to day, or at least every other week. That is, if a woman wears her hair low on the neck during the morning it will be much more lightly and becomingly if she does it in a high coiffure for the evening. Or if she braids it about her head one week, she should fasten it in a figure eight at the next.

OUTWITTING AN EGG.

If an egg which is to be boiled is cracked on the end or side, crack it on the opposite end or side before placing it in boiling water. This will prevent the white of the egg from running out.

IN A HURRY.

The next time some paste is needed, and none on hand, use condensed milk. It will stick as well as any paste made.

WHEN PRESSING SILK.

When pressing silk, spread over it a sheet of tissue paper. This will prevent that ugly shine usually seen on pressed silks.

RUFFLES.

Some of the taffeta bathing suits show ruffled skirts. These ruffles will cover a multitude of figure sins.

FRESHENS PIE.

Pie that has become soft and stale can be freshened to taste almost like freshly baked by placing the pie in a deep baking dish filled with hot water and letting it stand on the oven top until shortly before serving. Then take out of the water and put it inside the oven to crisp the crust.

SOFTENING LEATHER.

Castor oil, as warm as the hands can stand, is a good remedy for restoring softness to leather. Rub in with a soft cloth.

PREVENTS STICKING.

Grease the saucepan in which you are going to cook rice and you will have no trouble with the rice sticking to the sides or bottom.

EVENING GOWNS.

Lace appears on a good many evening gowns.

LIGHT LININGS.

Capes of white tricotette are lined with violet colored georgette or charmeuse.

Grand Circuit Races

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 1.—One bright spot in a rather ordinary race card today, was the victory of Goldie Todd in the Deshler hotel stake, the 2:10 pace, purse $3,000. Frank Dewey, Cox's great pacer, was barred in the betting, but Geers was able to take up the challenge on the track and won with Goldie Todd after four heats. The three-year-old colt trot was also a Geers victory, the veteran winning in straight heats with Molly Knight. The 2:12 trot was a contest between Edith Carter and Comet, it taking five heats before Edith Carter won. The 2:15 pace was a four-heat affair in which George Volo won the second mile, while Gold Quartz took the other three.

MERCHANTS OF OGDEN IN FAVOR OF BETTER ROAD CROSSINGS

Planning for greater safety to auto vehicles and other, a resolution proposing the elimination of the present grade crossing of the Union Pacific railroad at Riverdale was adopted last night by the Merchants of Ogden and will be presented to the Utah Public Utilities commission and to the state road commission.

At the same meeting, it was also proposed that action be taken by the state highway commission to change a crossing at Utah Hot Springs which has been considered dangerous, and it is also proposed to widen the road in Ogden canyon in the interests of greater safety to traffic.

The resolution directing that President J. S. Lewis file the proper petition for the Riverdale crossing change follows:

"Whereas, the grade crossing of the State Highway and the Union Pacific railroad at Riverdale, Utah, is a menace to travelers.

"Be it resolved, that the president be, and he is hereby authorized and instructed to cause application to be made by the Merchants of Ogden to the Public Utilities commission of Utah for an order requiring a separation of grades between the state highway and the tracks of the railroad company at this crossing, and that this improvement be made at the time when the highway is paved, the cost thereof to be equitably apportioned between the railroad company, the county, and the state."

At Utah Hot Springs. Regarding the change at Utah Hot Springs, the organization approved the sending of the following letter to the state road commission:

August 1, 1919.
"Utah State Road Commission, Capitol Building, Salt Lake City, Utah. Gentlemen: In connection with the proposed construction of a permanent hard-surfaced highway from North Ogden to the Utah Hot Springs, we beg to invite attention to the need of a change in the route of the state highway at the Springs.

"As now maintained, the road crosses the tracks of the Utah-Idaho Central railroad company, and also those of the Oregon Short Line railroad just south of the stop at this station, and then turns sharply and crosses these tracks connecting with the pavement which commences just north of the station. All vehicles using the highway, whether they desire to stop at the Springs or not, are required to make this turn and are subjected to the dangers of these two crossings, and at times of excursions and when trains are frequently passing and automobile traffic is heavy, the condition is an extremely dangerous one to travelers.

"We therefore urgently recommend that the commission change the route of the state highway at this point so that it will pass the Springs on the east side of the railroad tracks, and relieve the danger which exists. We believe this change can be made at small additional expense, and that it should be done at the time a permanent road is constructed.

"Trusting this petition will have your earnest and favorable consideration, we are

Canyon Road

The following letter to the state road commission regarding the Ogden canyon highway was also approved and ordered forwarded:

Gentlemen: On behalf of the Merchants of Ogden, I beg to express the appreciation of the members for the action of the Utah State Road commission in reconsidering the bids for the pavement of the Riverdale, Hot Springs, Pleasant View and Ogden canyon highways in Weber county, and to include cement pavement in asking for new bids. We believe that this action will result in a permanent road that will be satisfactory to the citizens of the county.

"There is a matter in connection with the Ogden canyon road which we feel should have the consideration of the commission in determining upon the character of construction which will be undertaken on that portion of the highway. There are many sharp turns on considerable grade in the canyon, and it is believed that the pavement should not be less than twenty feet wide with additional spread around the sharp curves on this highway. Any narrower road is dangerous in view of the heavy traffic of automobiles during the summer months particularly, which this road is required to sustain, and on account of the close proximity of the ledges on the one side and the river on the other, it is believed that the pavement should be wide enough to allow easy passage of automobiles in either direction. Furthermore, there is considerable haulage of farm products in large tractor trucks from Ogden Valley through the canyon, which renders the curves and grades more dangerous and makes it important that the road be wider than straight open highway.

"Also, we feel that at the time pavement is laid for a permanent roadbed through the canyon that the bridge at the mouth of the canyon, which is an old unsightly affair very narrow and out of line with the highway, should be replaced by a permanent concrete structure fitting the surroundings and adequate to the traffic conditions.

"Trusting these suggestions will have your earliest consideration and again thanking you for your action in reopening bids for these roads, I am,
"Very truly yours,
(Signed)

"J. S. Lewis, President."

LEAH BAIRD IN 'AS A MAN THINKS' AT THE OGDEN

A man does as he pleases and thinks nothing of it. When a woman does as she pleases, even though it be less than the man did, he thinks a great deal of it. The wrong that can be created by just a thought in the mind of a man is the idea behind the fascinating story of "As a Man Thinks," in which Leah Baird is featured at the Ogden theatre today.

Written by Augustus Thomas for the stage, the dean of American playwrights has woven a deft and powerful tale about the subject of a double standard of morals. Frank Clayton, staid business man and good husband, was visiting in Paris and "doing" the artists' colony. He saw no harm in his little flirtation with Mimi, the model, though he was anxious that his wife should not know about it.

When a jealous suspicion of his wife crosses his mind, instead of remembering his little affair, he accuses her of infidelity. It is the double standard of morals demonstrated—a standard of morals necessary because in the virtue of woman rests the welfare of the world.

CLOSING HOURS OF THE STORES OF OGDEN ARE FIXED

The uniform closing hours for Ogden stores will be 6 o'clock for five nights and 7 o'clock on Saturday nights, according to a decision reached last night by the Merchants of Ogden at a special meeting.

There was some discussion concerning the best time for closing to suit all concerned and the above hours were finally decided upon. Many of the merchants wanted to close at 6 o'clock on all days, but the butchers and grocers stated that it was necessary to keep open until 7 o'clock on Saturday and on days preceding holidays.

Superintendent to Be Decided On At Next Meeting

The new superintendent of schools of this city will probably be selected next Monday or Tuesday, at a special meeting of the board of education, according to a statement given out last night by President Levedahl and Dr. E. L. Rich, following the regular meeting.

The selecting of the school head was deferred last night after a discussion of the several candidates. The board

Semi-Dry Law Effects Belgium

BRUSSELS, Friday, Aug. 1. (By the Associated Press)—The United States is not the only prohibition country, Belgium having followed suit so far as whiskey, gin and other highly alcoholic liquors are concerned. Soon after the armistice was signed a law was passed forbidding the manufacture and sale of such beverages. The making of alcoholic drinks ceased almost immediately and not much attention was paid to the rule so far as the selling of liquor in the larger places was concerned. The authorities confiscated all stocks the bars had on hand. While these stocks had been sold openly they are said to have been secretly acquired from soldiers and smugglers. The largest hotels now are unable to stir up a single drink other than light wine for thirsty American and British officers.
